Chairman
United States Constitution
Bicentennial Commission
736 Jackson Place
Washington, D. C. 20503

Dear Warren:

I am late in sending you this copy of the book I wrote as my contribution to the 1976 bicentennial celebration of the Declaration of Independence. I wish you every success and satisfaction in your current bicentennial undertaking which seems very exciting.

At the CIA, we are celebrating the bicentennial with, among other things, a series of lectures by highly recognized Constitutional authorities on the precious heritage of our Constitution. We would like very much to have you inaugurate this lecture series, which wouldn't take you much more than an hour. We would like for you to visit our Headquarters to deliver such a lecture, and we could arrange it on short notice whenever you can make it. I will give you a call on this shortly.

With warm regards.

Yours,

William J. Casey
Director of Central Intelligence
